

HOBOS ON A LARK

They Sand-Bag Patrolman Drew on West Leonard Street.

HE IS SERIOUSLY DISABLED

A New Police Officer's Midnight Experience With a Bunch of Chances—The Crowd Dispersed.

The rampant hobo of the west who here broke out again, and as the result a policeman is confined to his home unable to report for duty at headquarters. Early yesterday morning Patrolman W. M. Drew, a recent acquisition to the police force, was sandwiched on West Leonard street and was obliged to retire from his beat badly disabled. Another patrolman was dispatched to relieve him and is now patrolling the beat. It has long been the custom of the tough element of that locality to test the mettle of a new patrolman when he makes his first appearance there. Thursday night Patrolman Drew was assigned to that beat and the hobo at once laid a scheme to do him up. He made his reports to the central station with undisturbed regularity up to midnight, but an hour or two afterwards he reported that he was sick and asked to be relieved. A short time previous a crowd of a dozen hoodlums had assembled and a ring was formed. Within the circle was a great commotion and cries for help rang out upon the midnight air.

Attempts an Arrest.

The nervy policeman at once saw an opportunity to make for himself a brilliant record as a brave and daring minion of the law by saving some poor fellow's head and arresting a dangerous criminal. He broke into the ring with the intention of preserving the peace at the risk of life and limb, but no sooner was he inside than he was felled to the ground by a heavy blow over the head by a ruffian in the hands of one of the ruffians. The blow was repeated two or three times when the crowd dispersed, leaving their victim nearly insensible with his face in the mud. When he recovered from the shock and had wiped the mud out of his eyes the crowd had disappeared. The officer does not know the names of any of his assailants, but he is positive he can identify them if he should see any of the number. The patrolman's head is badly bruised, and it will be several days before he can resume his place on the force.

ART OF THE EXPOSITION.

Prof. Taft enlightens a Big Audience on the Subject.

Persons who attended Prof. Taft's lecture on art at the world's fair last night will visit the fair with a more comprehensive conception of its beauties than they could possibly have had before. Those of them who do not see the fair will bear in mind its general characteristics of architecture and decoration intelligently. Prof. Taft combines the qualities of sculptor and lecturer most admirably, and the audience, which completely filled the auditorium and gallery, was brightened by his humor and instructed by his fine descriptions.

In opening he gave some stereoscopic views of Paris exposition features and stated briefly the main obstacles and harmonious results obtained in the Columbian. He paid a glowing tribute to St. Gaudens' fine New York sculptor, who was unanimously decreed, as the greatest of American sculptors, to supervise and decide upon all sculpture offered for the great fair. Some of his work was shown, none of which, however, has gone into the exposition. He described the decorative details of the gorgeous administration building, enthusiastically, and called it one of the most perfect buildings in the world, architecturally. French's work, especially his grand figure of the republic, was instructively detailed.

The agricultural building was called the most beautiful, though criticized by many as too fine for the purpose. The Diana which had caused so much discussion in New York was shown to be a pretty small affair when placed in Jackson Park. The colonnade between the agricultural and "manufacture" buildings was shown to be a perfect model of the old Roman classic architecture. Many of the great array of statues on the agricultural buildings were shown. The vastness of machinery hall was illustrated in all its hugeness as the only thing that looks big at Jackson Park. He feared that Americans would henceforth be spoiled for appreciating anything in foreign lands after so much beauty and vastness. Machinery hall alone would contain the pyramids and two colossuses and was built like Solomon's temple without sound of hammer. The pictures in the dome over the great entrance were much admired. The electrical, mining and manufactures' buildings and their statuary were analyzed. The lecturer made but little reference to his own work, but when he came to the statues of "Spring" and "Autumn," which adorn the sides of the main entrance to the elaborate horticultural building, the audience gave them hearty applause, and when they again applauded another of his pieces, he quietly thanked them and modestly asserted "rather like it myself." Mr. Taft paid tribute to the taste of Frank Millet, who superintended the color decorations, and graphically remarked that as he would go down to the shore after many a day's work at the fair, he would look back and reflect how easily the symmetrical whole compared to his childhood dreams of the celestial city. When standing in the Court of Honor he had many times hoped that all his sisters, cousins and aunts might see it, but he had changed his mind since about inviting them all to Chicago, but he hoped that his aunts might come and invite all their relatives.

The women of the Fountain Street church are naturally gratified over the complete success of the entertainment.

DEATH OF COLONEL STANDISH.

The Ex-District Attorney Expired at Newaygo Yesterday Morning.

Col. John H. Standish died at 8 o'clock yesterday morning at his home in Newaygo of dropsy of the heart. He had been seriously ill for three weeks, and had been attended by his daughter, Mrs. W. D. Fuller, of this city and other relatives till the end came. Colonel Standish has been well known here for many years. He lived here continuously during his two terms as district attorney, which lasted for eight years prior to 1891, having been appointed by General Grant. He was born at that time his son-in-law, W. D. Fuller, was his partner. Mr. Fuller looking chiefly after the business at Newaygo.

The colonel was a typical American citizen. He was widely known among the attorneys and other residents here as a man of keen mental powers, ample resources and vigor. He was born in Rutland county, Vermont, February 10, 1816, and was a direct descendant of Captain Miles Standish of Puritan fame. His father's family came to Eaton county, Michigan, in 1830, but the young man meanwhile had gone on a prospecting tour west. He journeyed down the Mississippi and finally enlisted in the Texas cavalry to fight the Mexicans, and took part in several engagements.

Later he came north to Mt. Carmel, Illinois, where he taught school and where he was married to Hester A. Courter, daughter of a pastor of the disciples church. He also became a convert to that faith, though afterward he became widely known as a psychological lecturer. After having been admitted to the bar in Illinois he settled at Middleville, Barry county, removing to Newaygo in 1852, where he built the house in which he died. He was elected county clerk and register of deeds of Newaygo county, successively, and in 1882 became its prosecuting attorney.

When the war broke out he organized a company in the Tenth Michigan cavalry, which was known as one of the best in the service. He came out of the war a lieutenant colonel. In 1867 and '80 he served as state senator and was chairman of the committee appointed to investigate the legal status of the D. & M. road. His subsequent terms as United States attorney here were characterized by the same energy and ability as his of former years.

After leaving here he practiced at Muskegon for five years, but his health beginning to fail he returned to Newaygo. Col. Standish was married a second time in 1857 to Elmeline Day, at New York. He leaves here a widow, his wife one daughter, Mrs. W. D. Fuller of this city, Albert H. Standish, traveler for the great Kellogg clothing house; Miles Standish, with the Wilcox Lumber company of California; Frank Standish of San Francisco and Mattie Standish, teacher in the kindergarten school at Muskegon.

THEY WANT TO KNOW.

The Academy of Medicine Trying to Find an Informant.

The publication of the proceedings of the Academy of Medicine the morning following the expulsion of Dr. Groser from that organization has caused considerable excitement and worry among the members of that star chamber body. At the last meeting of the academy certain persons, undoubtedly ashamed of the character of the proceedings on that night, instituted an inquiry as to who gave the information to the reporters. The president was instructed to appoint a committee of three to investigate the matter and find, if possible, where the "leak" is. This committee was named in secret by the president, each member of it not knowing who composed the remainder of the committee. When the proposition for an investigation was made one member of the academy arose and said: "Gentlemen, you might as well try to look for a needle in a haystack as to try to find out by the reporters who it was that gave it away."

RESTRICT IMMIGRATION.

Local Machinists Will Urge It in International Convention.

John Holcomb will leave today for Indianapolis to attend the meeting of the International Association of Machinists, which will be held at that city Monday. He represents Grand Rapids Lodge No. 191. Mr. Holcomb will present to each lodge represented a copy of the annexed resolutions with the request that some action be taken upon them. This movement originated with the Grand Rapids lodge.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

Whereas, The constant flow of emigration to the United States from foreign lands of men and women seeking to better their conditions, is a direct menace to the interests of American labor, and tends to the reduction of wages by overstocking the labor market;

Whereas, In most instances the people who so emigrate are of the poorer classes, who, when here, are obliged to underbid American labor in order to gain a foothold in our industries; and

Whereas, It has been the policy of the American people for more than thirty years, to protect American products against like products of foreign cheap labor, by duties laid for the purpose of protection, and an adequate effort has been made to protect the American laborer against the cheaper foreign laborer himself; therefore,

Resolved, That Congress be and is hereby requested to enact a law forbidding the landing of any foreigner in this country who has not been granted a pass by the American representatives at the port of departure; and that no such pass shall be granted except on due proof in writing, in form to be prescribed by law showing that the applicant is possessed of means of the value of at least $200 and is able to support himself and family for at least six months, after landing and paying for his passage, and that of his family; and that assisted emigration be strictly forbidden, and such proofs be made to show that the applicant has not been assisted by means of others for the purpose of an emigrating.

Resolved, Further, that the provisions of such law, all persons who come to this country thereafter, and have not proven possession of money in the value stated, but who have surreptitiously entered the country, in proof thereof, be suitably punished therefor, and be returned to the country from which they emigrated.
